How to get to Corato?

The closest airport is in Bari, the biggest in the region, which has many direct flights from many European Countries. Check out Wizzair and Ryanair websites to see if the flights are compatible with the training dates (in case they don't match, let us know about the difference in dates and we will check if we can arrange your stay). Here's a list of the places which have direct flight to Bari airport: www.aeroportidipuglia.it/bari/le-destinazioni

In Bari airport there is a train leaving directly from inside the airport and that will take you to Corato main station. Here you may find the timetables: www.ferrovienordbarese.it/home (in the homepage select the date, then departure "AEROPORTO K.W." and arrival "CORATO"). Usually there is a train every half an hour, the trip from the Airport to Corato takes around 45 minutes. The cost of one way the ticket is 6.40€. You don't need to buy the ticket in advance, as you can buy it at the machines at the airport.

Once you are in the train for Corato, you will give us a call or text us, and we will come to pick you up at the station – Carmine +39 3897864256 or Rocco +39 3270096476.

We strongly advise you to travel to Bari airport, but in case you don't have an option to travel directly to Bari, you can fly to Rome or Milano and then reach our Region via plane, bus or train.

- Rome and Milano are connected to Bari airport with many flights during the day (check Alitalia, Ryanair and Easyjet websites for connections);
- Bus: If you want to skip a extra flight, check Flixbus (www.flixbus.com) or Marino Bus (www.marinobus.it) for direct busses to Corato; (from Rome it usually takes 6-8 hours and from Milano it takes 12-14 hours);
- Trains: Trains are a little bit more complicated than busses but faster. If you are looking for trains from the main Italian cities you can check the national railway (www.trenitalia.com/en.html) but you need to choose Barletta as destination (instead of Corato), and then catch a connecting train or bus from Barletta to Corato (www.ferrovienordbarese.it/home).

Beside this, other nearby airports are the ones in Naples and Brindisi, so you can check the flights to these two cities as well. There are just few bus lines a day from Naples to Corato, and from Brindisi there are many regional trains (but the airport has fewer connections).
